Cancer's deadly tree of life

1. Cancer starts with one cell mutating

2. This then develops into a Darwinian ecosystem of genetic diversity

A patient with advanced kidney cancer had 118 genetically distinct cancer 'species'

This diversity in tumours echoes Charles Darwin's depiction of the way species themselves evolve